

It's 25 degrees in England today. It's a bit chilly. The temperature in England would be minus something like minus something. The weatherman could tell that he was English by his accent. He could tell it was English because he could tell by the accent.